Quality Education : A Community Commitment

Dear Parents,

Pre-School is important in building both functional skill as well as curricular skill. Again the skill development among kids changes very fast and those need to be monitored systematically. As per CDC (Centre for Disease Control and Prevention), USA, the developmental milestone of the children in the pre-school years must be monitored and necessary interventions to be done in-case of deficiency in the skill.

Gyana Vikash Kids has compiled the skills as per different age and the same is put into a methodology which can help the teachers and parents to interpret easily and also identify the skills where the kid needs to develop further.

"Education is the best gift that we can give to our Children"

Math & Counting Skills

From understanding basic counting to practicing simple addition and subtraction, kindergarteners will need to master basic math skills that will set them up for success in school. Since kindergarten mainly focuses on numbers, shapes, and patterns, it's beneficial to familiarize your child with these basic concepts.

Language & Communication Skills

Language is a vital part of human connection. Although all species have their ways of communicating, humans are the only ones that have mastered cognitive language communication.

Language allows us to share our ideas, thoughts, and feelings with others. It has the power to build societies, but also tear them down.

There are four language and communication skills: listening, speaking, reading, and writing. These four skills of language allow an individual to comprehend and produce spoken language for proper and effective interpersonal communication.

Cognitive Skill Development

During early childhood, children's ability to understand language at a more complicated level also develops. Young children develop "Illocutionary Intent", or the ability to understand that a sentence may have meaning beyond the exact words being spoken.

Cognitive development in early childhood means how children think, explore and figure things out. It is the development of knowledge, skills, problem solving and dispositions, which help children to think about and understand the world around them. Brain development is part of cognitive development.

Social & Emotional Learning

SEL at school usually includes both lessons on these skills and lots of daily practice. For example, a teacher might lead a lesson on conflict resolution.

Then, when a conflict between students comes up, the teacher coaches them through it using the skills from the lesson.

SEL has five main skills: self-awareness, social awareness, responsible decision-making, self-management, and relationship skills. Specific topics that schools often teach include identifying feelings, considering other people's perspectives, and brainstorming solutions to problems.

Movement & Physical Skills

Children develop a variety of physical skills throughout their lives, including gross motor skills, fine motor skills, and motor skills:

GROSS MOTOR SKILLS

These physical movements help kids develop coordination and muscles, and include balance and coordination.

FINE MOTOR SKILLS

These are the abilities to make movements using the small muscles in the hands and wrists. They include more precise physical movements, like writing, coloring, and cutting.

MOTOR SKILLS

These are essential for a child's physical strength and movement. They include lifting, walking, running, eating, speaking, singing, and writing on a keyboard.

Environmental Skills

Environmental education is a process that allows individuals to explore environmental issues, engage in problem solving, and take action to improve the environment. As a result, individuals develop a deeper understanding of environmental issues and have the skills to make informed & responsible decisions. Therefore, when an intentional teacher is setting up the learning environment, we need to consider a combination of conditions.

More specifically, we think about three key aspects: the physical environment, social-emotional environment, and temporal environment. Safe, responsive, & nurturing environments are an important part of supporting the learning and development of infants, toddlers, and preschoolers.
